

Lougheed rattles sabre on behalf of west

EDMONTON (CP) — Alberta Premier Peter Lougheed said Saturday a natural gas export tax in the expected fall federal budget would amount to a "declaration of war" against Western Canada.

At an informal news conference following an address to the 61st annual meeting of the Canadian Community Newspapers Association, Lougheed told reporters such a tax would encroach on provincial resource ownership and "would just, I think, shatter the whole concept of Confederation when the provinces own the resources because it's a direct attack upon the resources."

He said the provinces would "resist in the strongest way possible if there is a federal natural gas export tax."

In Ottawa, federal officials were either unavailable or declined comment Sunday on Lougheed's remarks.

But Prime Minister Trudeau said shortly after oil-pricing talks with Alberta ended in failure July 25 that Ottawa would not be "starting any war" over the issue with the province which has most of Canada's oil and natural gas.

Trudeau said imposition of a natural gas export tax is only one of several options open to the federal government in its bid to get more revenue from higher prices to finance a comprehensive energy program.

During the talks with Trudeau, Lougheed proposed that the domestic oil price be raised in stages to 75 per cent of the North American price. Alberta unilaterally raised the price by $2 a barrel, effective Aug. 1.

The domestic price under the previous agreement, which expired July 31, was $14.75 a barrel.

The premier said he would be taking the offensive more in future, as he did in his address to the weekly newspaper representatives from across the country, and will criticize federal energy policy arguments, rather than simply stating Alberta's position.

In his first major statement since the oil-pricing talks collapsed, Lougheed said analysts predict a serious oil shortage by the mid-1980s and the risk of an earlier disruption of supply from the politically-volatile Persian Gulf area of the Middle East.

He said Canada now imports one-third of its oil and that conventional reserves, mainly in Alberta, are depleting rapidly.

Lougheed said Canada's oil import bill this year is $2 billion and is predicted to hit $4.5 billion by 1983.

But the premier said Ottawa seems to have a distorted perspective of the current energy supply picture and noted that the federal government, apparently prefers Mexican oil to the Alberta product.

On Sunday, Petro-Canada and Petroleos Mexicanos, or Pemex, signed an agreement to provide Canada with up to 50,000 barrels of oil a day — nearly 15 per cent of Canadian import requirements — by December.

An external affairs department spokesman in Ottawa said the two state-owned oil companies worked out the details of the deal last week in Mexico City after agreement in principle on the exports was reached during Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo's visit to Ottawa in June.

In exchange for the oil, Mexico will get assistance for its industrial and agricultural development.

"Our assessment is that our total aggregate proposal to Canada (made during last month's oil-pricing talks) would reduce Canada's dependence on foreign oil by approximately 600,000 barrels per day by 1988," said Lougheed.

On the constitution, Lougheed said the federal system is the right system for Canada, but Alberta wants a revised federalism that strengthens provincial powers without weakening essential federal powers.

Crashes kill helmetless bike riders

Two men who were not wearing motorcycle helmets and died in separate traffic accidents were among seven persons who were killed accidentally in British Columbia during the weekend.

The five others also died in traffic accidents. RCMP said Allan Ruchlow, 23, and Stanley Clark Edgar, 25, both of North Vancouver, were killed when the motorcycle they were riding collided with a bus in their community early Sunday. Ruchlow was not wearing a helmet, police said.

Terrance Christie McCracken, 32, of Calgary, was killed Saturday when his motorcycle collided with a car near Shawinigan Lake, about 60 kilometres north of Victoria. Few details were available, but police say he was not wearing a helmet.

Ronald Gilbert Blair, 23, son of Richmond, B.C.

Mayor Gil Blair, and Wayne Shier of Pemberton, B.C., were killed Sunday when the car in which they were riding left the road, overturned and crashed into a tree near Mount Currie, about 120 kilometres north of Vancouver.

Two Canadian Forces servicemen from Quebec were killed early Saturday when they were trapped inside a pickup truck that flipped over and caught fire at an intersection in the Victoria suburb of Colwood. The dead men were identified as Private Rejean LeGault, 23, of St. Agathe, and Private Gilles Rouillard of Laval.

Three others in the truck managed to escape, two of them with minor injuries.

The Canadian Press survey, from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Sunday local times, does not include homicides, suicides or industrial deaths.

Boat blockade having effect

PARIS (AP) — A strike by French fishermen that brought chaos to English Channel ports spread today to the Mediterranean with the blockade of three harbors on the island of Corsica. The fishermen closed the ports of Bastia, Ile Rousse and Calvi in solidarity with other fishermen blocking ports from Cherbourg to Dunkerque on the northern French coast.

Coming at the height of the holiday season, the action by the Corsican fishermen inconvenienced thousands of travellers aboard car ferries bound for mainland ports such as Nice or on their way to Corsica.

Thousands of British tourists already were stranded in makeshift hotels at schools and clubs in the Normandy ports as companies that operated channel car ferries to and from France switched operations to other ports.

VIRUS VACCINE HOLDING OUT

There is still some feline distemper vaccine in Terrace that will treat dogs for canine parvovirus.

Dr. Lou Elorza's veterinary clinic received about 130 doses of the vaccine this weekend, but he has quite a few appointments today and Tuesday, and doesn't know how long the vaccine will last.

Dr. Les Hays, a vet, said Monday he probably has about 100 doses of the vaccine left.

Meanwhile, a controversy about the safest treatment of a lethal virus among dogs has been temporarily halted as supplies of disputed vaccines run out.

Manufacturers and distributors of the cat distemper vaccine that has been used to protect dogs against the disease say veterinarians may have to wait until October for more vaccine.

Toronto dog owners became concerned after outbreaks of the disease, canine parvovirus, were reported earlier in the summer.

A vaccine developed for dogs quickly ran out, and veterinarians were forced to turn to vaccines normally used to protect cats against distemper.

There are two forms, a so-called killed vaccine and modified live vaccine, which stimulates the animal's immunity system.

But researchers at the University of Guelph sounded the alarm that the live vaccine could actually spread the virus.

The arguments have left a quagmire and panicky dog owners confused, says Dr. Martin Tammemagi, a Toronto veterinarian.

The live vaccine contains living virus which may multiply in the dog or be passed on to other dogs, he said.

However, University of Cornell researchers say the live vaccine offers better and longer protection, said Dr. Clayton MacKay, president of the Ontario Veterinary Association. There has not been enough research to be certain of either claim, the Whitby veterinarian said. Parvo virus, which is world wide, is too new, MacKay said.

MacKay said Sunday that although there has been a drop in outbreaks of parvo virus, reports indicate the death ratio is increasing and the disease is taking a stronger grip.

Hit-and-run storm slams mainland area

VANCOUVER (CP) — Thousands of residents in the Vancouver area were without power Sunday night after a lightning storm accompanied by gusty winds toppled trees onto power lines and blew transformers. A B.C. Hydro spokesman said seven major electrical circuits were out in the city and the suburbs of Richmond, West Vancouver, Surrey and Burnaby.

Extra crews have been called in to carry out repairs, but hydro officials were unable to say when power would be restored.

More rain, wind and thunder storms were forecast for overnight.

Credit cards can be bad news but there's help

By GAIL DOTLINGA
Herald Staff Writer
Credit cards are bad news for some people.

Bill Godden, debt counsellor at the Consumer Services Office in Terrace, sees 12 to 15 new cases a month, most in trouble because of credit cards.

"People just don't realize how much they're spending with credit cards. If they have them for department stores, they just order what they want."

Charge, Visa and MasterCard are in some ways more dangerous, he says, because they can be used for a variety of services. Those who get into debt because of credit cards usually do it with more than one.

One client had 18 and his wife had 13, 12 of which duplicated her husband's.

"A lot of people overextend themselves without the permission of the creditor. As long as they have a good job, most often the company doesn't care because it knows it will get their money back somehow," said Godden.

February is his busiest month, with people who've overspent at Christmas. The most anyone has been in debt that Godden has helped, was $182,000, but that involved more than credit cards.

"It's just poor management of money. They never thought where the money was coming from or where it was going."

When a person comes to Godden's office for help, he must know how much they are in debt and what they earn. From there he can put them on different programs to solve their financial woes.

If the person has a low income, he will arrange with them to send one payment a month to the Vancouver office of the Department of Consumer Services, where the money will then be distributed to the creditors on a pro rata basis. Another system of payments of debts is part of the federal bankruptcy act where a person does not have to declare bankruptcy.

Again, they send payments to the office in Vancouver every month, where it is sent to the creditors. If the bills can be paid off within three years, then the creditors do not have to be informed, but if it takes longer, they must be told in advance.

The advantages of this system are that the interest rate is reduced to five per cent so that the person can pay off the debts quicker; all harassment from the creditors must stop and only one payment has to be made each month.

The disadvantages, if they can be called that, are no credit while paying off the bills and while the debts are gone, they will have a lower credit rating.

Lastly, there is personal bankruptcy. However, a court hearing must be held to decide whether that person is legitimately bankrupt.

"Bankruptcy is often refused if the person has spent the money recklessly and foolishly," said Godden.

At the first hearing, usually the creditors are present to question the applicant on how they spent the money and why they overspent.

"Sometimes they've been laid off at work and no longer can pay the bills," Godden noted.

A second hearing is held three to six months later, where the applicant is usually discharged from bankruptcy. What that means is that all their assets are taken and sold to pay off the creditors. They are allowed to keep any furniture or a vehicle if its value is under $2,000.

For six years after a person has declared bankruptcy, they are refused all credit and later will have a low credit rating.

"Sometimes it's hard for people to live on a budget, but most are willing to go along with whatever alternative is suggested to them," said Godden.

Sometimes Godden will ask a client to give him the credit cards until the bills have been paid.

He sees a broad spectrum of people in his office. Some are single parents, some have alcohol problems, others are young, some are old.

The local Consumer Services Office covers a 70-mile radius. In the four years Godden has been here, he's had over 400 cases.

Along with debt counselling, he'll give advice on budgeting. Sometimes he's called on by the ministers to talk to young couples planning to get married.

Consumer complaints can also be handled by the Consumer Services Office in Terrace.

"I receive a lot on used cars. There's no warranty, but a month after the purchase, the engine blows up." "If there is something I can't handle, then our office in Prince George, which has a lawyer, will look after it."

The debt counsellor's office is located with the Terrace Community Services at 4803 Park and is open from 2:30 p.m. to 5:00 p.m. daily.

Titanic hunt likely to resume

NEW YORK (AP) — Rough seas and dwindling supplies have ended the mission of a group searching for the Titanic, but the group's backer says he will probably pay for another hunt for the ship next summer. The 55-metre research ship H.W. Fay, equipped with advanced remote-sensing instruments, abandoned its search Sunday just two days after expedition leader Mike Harris reported finding an underwater object "the right length, right width and right height of the Titanic."

The object was discovered 3,650 metres down on the ocean floor by a sonar sled that had picked up five targets — three of them rocks — before picking up the outline the Fay crew sought.

However, winds gusting to more than 80 kilometres an hour and waves more than three metres high prevented scientists from sending down TV and still-photography cameras to take a closer look at the object.

The area the ship was exploring, about 330 nautical miles off the coast of Newfoundland, is generally agreed to be the site where the luxury liner went down. Its exact location has never been pinpointed.

Greenpeace claims victory

VANCOUVER (CP) — Greenpeace said Sunday it has ruined this year's trophy hunt for caribou and moose in the 1.5-million-acre Spatsizi wilderness park in the B.C. interior.

However, the environmentalist group is demanding an explanation for what it charges is a lack of official supervision of the non-existent hunt.

The 12 helicopter- and ground-based Greenpeace members have spotted no trophy hunters since their reconnaissance began Friday.

The Titanic, billed as "unsinkable" and the largest ship of its day, struck an iceberg on its maiden voyage from England on April 15, 1912. The boat sank in 2½ hours, carrying more than 1,500 of its 2,200 passengers to watery graves.

Jack Grimm, the Texas oilman who paid for the search, said Sunday he will probably send another mission out next summer with a seven-man Aluminant submarine, the only vessel that can descend to such depths.

Grimm, who spent more than $1 million on the expedition and has paid for past searches for the Loch Ness monster and Noah's ark, said he expects to make a profit from book and movie rights. A writer and several film-makers were aboard the Fay, he said.

AFGHAN KILLINGS

Both sides claim other on attack

ISLAMABAD (AP) — Afghan rebels say Soviet air attacks on 22 villages killed more than 1,200 men, women and children celebrating the end of Moslem holy month of Ramadan. Other sources report a new post-Ramadan rebel offensive, and say a team of Soviet generals is in Kabul planning a counter-strike.

The Afghan rebel group Hizbe Islami, the Islamic Front, said in a statement issued in this Pakistani city that almost 30 Soviet bombers and helicopters destroyed 22 villages in Wardak province, south of the Afghan capital of Kabul.

It said the raids occurred last Tuesday during the Moslem festival of Eid, a joyous celebration marking the end of the 30-day Ramadan period of dawn-to-dusk fasting.

Like most rebel reports, this one could not be independently confirmed. Such reports often contain exaggerated claims.

Nor was there any confirmation of a report reaching the Indian capital of New Delhi on Sunday that rebel Moslem guerrillas launched a string of post-Ramadan raids against Afghan government soldiers and their Soviet allies around Kabul.

The report, from a source in Kabul who has proved accurate in the past, said the rebels killed 13 Soviets and captured four others in a raid near the sprawling Bagram military air base north of Kabul.

The source said rebels also took a busload of 22 Afghan air force pilots and mechanics hostage last week about 65 kilometres north of Kabul. He said the guerrillas offered to trade them for guerrillas captured during Ramadan, but the government replied with stepped-up helicopter gunship attacks on rebel strongholds.

The source did not report what became of the hostages.

The Kremlin has maintained 85,000 or more Soviet soldiers in Afghanistan since last December to bolster the pro-Moscow Kabul government in its war against the anti-Communist guerrillas. Diplomats say Soviet soldiers are in firm control of Afghan cities but face stiff resistance from the guerrillas in the rugged countryside.

Weekend reports from Afghanistan said a team of top Soviet generals was meeting in Kabul to plan a major new offensive against the rebels. The reports from reliable sources gave no details.

REGINA (CP) — Saskatchewan, the second largest producer of crude oil in Canada, has an estimated 25 billion barrels of heavy oil reserves. Most of the province's heavy oil production goes to the upper Midwestern area of the U.S.

NEWS BRIEFS

LONDON (Reuters) — Despite Britain's resources of North Sea oil and natural gas, its domestic energy prices are possibly the highest in Western Europe, say industrialists and union leaders who are lobbying the Conservative government of Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher for relief.

This summer British oil output ran level with consumption. This did little to cheer recession-hit steel, chemicals, cement and paper manufacturers in a country with 7.3 per cent of its work force unemployed. The oil had already turned the pound sterling into a petrocurrency, helping raise its value to almost $2.75 Canadian and thereby making British exports harder to sell.

Industry saw as the crowning irony the government's subsequent readiness to let prices for electricity, natural gas and heavy fuel oil rise sharply. Industrial energy charges have risen between 30 and 40 per cent in one year.

Defence strength improves

TORONTO (CP) — Canada's defence capability has improved significantly during the last two years, says Defence Minister Gilles Lamontagne.

Lamontagne, who arrived in Toronto aboard HMCS Nipigon Saturday, said in an interview that a new program announced recently to update the navy equipment, lets the navy know "we want to be proud of it."

Lamontagne recently announced the spending of $107 million to update equipment.

The Nipigon, an anti-submarine warfare destroyer is among 10 naval ships approaching their life expectancy of 20 to 25 years that will be refitted in the destroyer life extension program approved by cabinet.

"Until they (the ships) can be replaced, it is necessary to undertake a life-extension program to ensure that they can continue to meet their military duties," Lamontagne said in a statement.

Cut pup makes recovery

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — A puppy — slashed, tied and left to die was romping around the Spokane County dog pound Sunday as though nothing had happened, officials said.

The small, wiry pup, about two months old, was found Friday by Carol Mooney, a Spokane-area woman who will soon be the animal's new owner.

Mrs. Mooney heard a dog whining. When she went outside to investigate, she saw "something tied up and bloody."

The dog was stretched, spread-eagled, on its back with each leg tied to a tree with jute twine. The puppy's stomach had been slit from the lower ribs to the hip.

World prospects dimmer

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — Prospects for world economic growth have deteriorated in the last year, the World Bank said in its annual survey released Sunday.

The outlook is gloomy for developed and most Third World countries, and only those developing countries with oil resources can look forward to some improvement, said the survey, called World Development Report, 1980.

"Impacted on the trident of inflation and recession in the developed countries and much more expensive oil, world growth prospects have deteriorated in the past year," the report said.

It said most of the developing world's people — those living in countries without domestic oil supplies — can expect annual growth rates of only 1.8 to 2.4 per cent in the next five years, much less than the bank forecast in last year's report.

The report said developing countries as a whole started the decade facing two major challenges.

Press strike at end

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Newspaper Guild employees at Reuters news agency have ended their 25-day strike against the British-based agency and returned to work today, union officials said.

The 190 guild members accepted the new three-year contract by a 78-to-16 vote Sunday, completing the ratification process by U.S. employees of Reuters. On Friday, about one-third of the strikers ratified the proposed contract at meetings.

Canadian Wire Service Guild employees also declined to cross picket lines.

Sightseers flock to volcano

REYKJAVIK (Reuters) — Iceland's Mount Hekla volcano erupted Sunday, causing a traffic jam on nearby roads as thousands went to watch it.

The 1,490-metre peak was split in two by the eruption, the 16th in recorded history. Icelanders marked the occasion with a mass picnic, and the volcano's lower slopes were crowded with spectators enjoying a big display.

Most volcanic activity was on the southwest side where about 20 fire-fountains spewed flames, rocks and smoke as roaring sounds came from below ground.

The top of Hekla could be seen only occasionally through the smoke. Glowing lava flowed from the summit.

NATURE'S WORLD

DENNIS HORWOOD

A skipper butterfly rested momentarily on a patch of roadside daisies. After a brief pause, it floated from flower to flower, sipping nectar from each. As the dark bodies insect reached the last blossom, the flutter of its wings alerted a concealed predator.

In less than an instant, a pair of sharp chelicerae pierced the butterfly's vulnerable abdomen. A potent venom was injected at the same time and rendered the trapped butterfly helpless. It never really had a chance, as its captor is a master of surprise and skillful attack.

I witnessed the end of this scenario. By the time I noticed the predator and its prey, the bright yellow crab spider had lifted the butterfly up and was sucking out the body juices. Ever aware of any movement, the small spider dropped the butterfly as I moved close to the flower. It quickly disappeared beneath the petals where it undoubtedly was before the arrival of the skipper.

Crab spiders are well known for this kind of behavior. Instead of building webs, elaborate traps or other devices, they have depended on speed, concealment and surprise attack. To live this way, they have special equipment.

Body design is one of their most important aids. Crab spiders resemble the unrelated oceanic crabs. They both have a flattened body and hold their legs at each side. The flattened body helps them hide against stems and leaves, or when necessary, disappear in the thinnest crevice. The long legs, arranged perpendicular to the side, allows for forward, backward and sideward motion.

Their agility and body design is coordinated with a keen sense of touch and movement. Their eyes easily detect movement in daylight. At night, chemical receptors on their legs help pinpoint any potential prey. Thus, they are equally adept at day or night hunting.

When a crab spider is hidden, waiting for its quarry, it often holds its legs outstretched and ready. Once an insect is detected, they swiftly grab it with their legs. Their weak jaws or chelicerae inject a powerful toxin. So powerful, in fact, that large bees, wasps and even other spiders are no match for this formidable creature's poison.

Some species of crab spiders have still one more advantage over the creatures they hunt - camouflage. These aggressive spiders are often colored yellow, white or tan. They blend perfectly with similarly colored flowers. In a few cases, they actually change their color to match the leaf or petals around them. Spiders that can't change color try to imitate inanimate objects. Some resemble bird droppings, while others appear as dried seeds, leaf buds, and even parts of the flower itself.

The crab spider has earned itself an interesting reputation. It is a master at ambush, fast on its feet and both a day and night hunter. Its camouflage techniques render it almost invisible to the eye. It is a good thing that they seldom grow larger than one centimetre.

Creek Street in Ketchikan, Alaska, is one of the more popular spots for tourists visiting that city. In recent years, tourism has grown in Alaska's third largest city with the increase of cruise ships travelling up the coast. Almost daily, one will be docked in the Ketchikan harbor during the summer months.

With about 650 kilometres of harbor along the northern coast blocked, many motorists drove on to the Belgian ports of Ostend and Zeebrugge to catch a ferry home. The result was long lines there and delays of several hours.

P. and O. Ferries, one of the cross-channel operators, was sending four ferries a day on round trips to Zeebrugge from the English ports of Dover and Southampton.

Hundreds of British tourists spent Sunday night in schools, clubs and private homes that were opened to British victims of the row between the fishermen and their government. Hotels in Dieppe and Le Havre put up extra beds.

In Cherbourg, authorities offered stranded visitors free camp beds to sleep on plus bread and milk.

The fishermen are complaining of lower prices for their catch and a government plan that would cut the number of crew members on a unionized boat. One maritime union appealed to all of France's fishermen to go on strike. Fishermen on the Mediterranean coast were expected to decide today whether to join the protest.

The tourist trade along the French channel coast was taking a beating. In Boulogne, many gift shops did not open Sunday, restaurants were less than half full, and business at the casino was considerably below normal.

Passengers aboard the ferry Valiant Viking were terrified when the trawlermen attacked their ship as it tried unsuccessfully to run the blockade at Cherbourg. Six passengers were injured when the fishermen threw flares, ball bearings and metal bolts.

Hazelton, the Barkerville of the northwest?

It's a possibility, one the mayor and many of the residents there would like to see.

Recently, TIDSA funded a consultant to look at the feasibility of remodelling the village in an 1880 style and the impact it would have on tourism. The report has been completed and speaks favourably of the idea, says Mayor Alice Maitland.

"K'san draws in lots of tourists but there is not enough here to keep them overnight or for the rest of the day."

The plans for the downtown area of the village include cedar siding, old-fashioned porches and wooden sidewalks.

"The buildings would be done over in the same fashion as the municipal office is now," said Maitland.

"It would be like Barkerville, except there would be people living here."

The rich history of the area would add to the 1880 theme, said Maitland, referring to the fact that Hazelton was one of the first communities established in the northwest.

"The first bank and hospital were built here."

The village also hopes to draw in packaged tours from Japan with its new image. Other communities in the area such as Kitwanga, Kitwano and Kispiox have shown an interest in the idea.

"In the Kispiox, they're thinking of putting in trails and dude ranches for the tourists. There's also talk of a Hand of History tour, which would be in the back road to Kitwanga," said Maitland.

The idea of changing the appearance of the village has been talked about for ten years. The project was helped along several years ago when Hazelton received a Canada Works grant which employed people to research the history of the village and sketch architectural drawings of what it would look like in the 1880 style.

"Now with the TIDSA money, we were at least able to get a good plan which was something we never had before," said Maitland.

The project will cost approximately $1 million, but Hazelton residents feel they will be lucky to get $500,000. Next month the proposal comes before TIDSA offers who will decide if it is feasible and if so, how much money will be granted.

"We'll ask for everything we can get," said Maitland. She feels the money would be well spent and would benefit the province as a whole.

"Right now too many of the tourist attractions are overused and more are needed."

POLICE NEWS

A Prince Rupert man was involved in an accident Saturday when his car hit a year-old bear cub crossing Highway 25 near Kitimat.

He lost control of the car and slid over a 20-foot embankment. No injuries were sustained to the driver, but the bear had to be destroyed by a fish and wildlife officer.

Kitimat RCMP caution motorists to watch for wildlife crossing the highway.

A Kitimat woman was charged with driving without a driver's license Saturday after she failed to make the S curve on the Kuldo extension and rolled into the ditch. There were no injuries, but damage to the car was estimated at $3,000.

Roderick Kale, and Nora Wilson will appear in court on a charge of creating a disturbance following an incident at the Terrace Credit Union Saturday.

The helmet issue

It should no longer be necessary for the provincial government to enact legislation requiring motorcyclists to wear safety helmets.

If the fatal events of the past week involving motorcycles are not incentive enough for the cyclists, maybe they deserve anything they get.

To start with, the entire go-around is silly. And again, as in the dispute over who controls the Nechako River, the decision to throw the helmet law out was made in the courts on a technicality, rather than on any social or humane terms.

You might like to be reminded that this is the second time the law has been in the courts recently. In 1979, it was ruled invalid by the courts because the wrong people apparently had the authority for testing the helmets. At that time, no one—neither learned judge nor learned counsel of either side—though to suggest that it was an invalid law on any other grounds.

This time, it was deemed by the court that the provincial Motor Vehicles Branch, a duly authorized and fully-supported arm of the provincial government of the day, does not have the power to prosecute the infractions. The court did not say the law was bad, just that the wrong people were pressing the charges.

Does this then mean that every prosecution under the helmet law since its inception will be voided? And, if not, why not? It stands to reason that if our government, of which the judiciary is just one of many checks and balances, has improperly prosecuted citizens, it should not be necessary for an individual to hire counsel and go through the entire court process again to resolve what the court has already decided was a wrongful prosecution. But that is another can of worms which will, no doubt, be amply aired.

Like the seat belt legislation, the helmet law, as it relates to the driver, is an unwarranted imposition. Neither law, in any way, prevents accidents.

To order simply that passengers of motorcycles must wear helmets; that seat belts must be provided by the driver for adult passengers in autos or trucks; and that children MUST be belted up would suffice.

Those who wish to expose themselves to needless risks could do so, but they would be responsible for those in their care. Stiffer penalties would also be a benefit.

At least that would eliminate the technicalities and allow the left hand to be fully aware of what the right hand was doing.

When 'help' turns into fatal 'harm'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Some Vancouver teenagers with psychiatric problems end up in jails instead of hospitals because no emergency psychiatric facility exists here.

And experts add that some teenagers try to kill themselves while others succeed because they do not receive help.

One intoxicated 16-year-old girl with psychiatric problems made an unsuccessful suicide attempt when placed in the youth detention centre, says Gloria Ratner, social worker.

After she was refused admission to Vancouver General Hospital's emergency ward, she was placed in the forensic ward at Riverview, a local hospital for the criminally insane.

Child psychiatrist Dr. Robert Krell, said the absence of service may indicate that we are not as child oriented as we would like to pretend.

An emergency services implementation committee, headed by social planner Renate Shearer, is trying to change the bleak picture, first of all by trying to get Vancouver General Hospital to help.

The committee has requested a community services room at the hospital where community workers could talk down teenagers after they have been assessed by medical staff; a containment room for violent teenagers in danger of injuring themselves or others; and an emergency staff person trained to work with adolescents.

However, the committee wants more in the long run. It is seeking an adolescent emergency services and psychiatric assessment unit where teenagers could stay for further observation before being referred to other services.

Meanwhile, teenagers are taken to local hospitals and Willingdon (the youth detention centre) as a last resort, Shearer said.

Social worker Alex Michaels, a member of the human resources ministry emergency services youth team, is convinced an adolescent psychiatric unit is needed.

He remembers a night when police brought a teenage girl into the emergency services office. The girl was taken to hospital where a psychiatrist diagnosed toxic psychosis, caused by repeated multiple drug use.

But instead of leaving her in hospital where she could neither harm herself or anyone else, she was returned to the youth team.

"What eventually happened is she ended up in Willingdon," Michaels said. A teenager can be placed in Willingdon only if the person has been charged with a crime. They are kept overnight and appear in court the next morning.

Michael's supervisor, Ratner, identified about 125 adolescents between the ages of 12 and 17 who came to the emergency services office in the first six months of this year "for whom appropriate medical and psychiatric services were not available."

Krell said adolescents are an underserved population in most large cities, but the situation in Vancouver is especially bad.

Phyllis Hood, director of Vancouver General Hospital patient services, said the hospital is prepared to look at the problem, but she added that the hospital and provincial health ministry would require more documentation before any action is taken.

"How long do we have to document?" Shearer asked. "We need something for the kids."

"We have identified an emergency, problem but through that we have identified a much larger problem. Reality is that somebody has got to look at the kid and get him off the street."

Woman moderator a sign of change

HALIFAX (CP) — Rev. Lois Wilson says her election as moderator of the United Church of Canada shows how social attitudes have changed.

"Maybe the time is right for a woman," Mrs. Wilson said after her election

Saturday. "It may be past the time."

"I covet the leadership of a woman in the church. This will indicate to society we are moving along."

Mrs. Wilson, associate minister of Chalmers United Church in Kingston, Ont., was elected on the third ballot at the general council's meeting at Dalhousie University. She becomes the first woman to hold the highest post in the United Church in Canada and the first woman to head a major Christian denomination in Canada.

She was not the only woman candidate for the post; among the eight contenders was Dr. Margaret Houston of Montreal.

Mrs. Wilson succeeds Rt. Rev. George Tuttle.

LAW TALK

The first in a series of four articles on operating a small business by Gordon Hardy. Doreen Braverman is one silly goose who's laughing all the way to the bank.

Back in 1975 when she opened Canada's first retail flag store in Vancouver, her friends called her a silly goose. But now that The Flag Shop is flourishing, Doreen has had the last laugh. A large model of a silly goose is prominently displayed in the store's window as a mascot.

Though she had had no previous business experience, Doreen turned a good idea into a successful business venture. Like her, a great many people try every year to set up a small business with hopes of independence, excitement and, why not?, a pot of gold, a business empire. But many fall—bank accounts are gobbled up, the family home mortgaged, and creditors lurk behind the shrubs of the front lawn.

What was the secret of Doreen's success? It turns out to be no secret at all; she gladly shares it: "Know what you're doing. And when I say that, I mean in words, but also dollar amounts."

"When we found ourselves with the opportunity," she says, "we did some checking around. Although no one else had gone into

She's a silly goose

who found a golden egg

this kind of business previous to us, it didn't deter us. We felt there might be a reason why they hadn't but, on the other hand, there are one or two new things under the sun. So we sat down and decided what our needs were going to be, what revenue we had, and what staff we could afford, before it would be a successful venture."

"We put all our plans down on paper with dollar signs beside them and then launched in."

A period fraught with danger usually follows the launching of a young business—this is the period which tests the calculations on which the business is based. Will the idea catch on? Will a clientele develop? Is the location a good one? It is a period in which the entrepreneur can see his or her capital investment drain away before any reasonable revenue starts coming in.

According to Doreen, people should prepare for this difficult period beforehand: "I think probably most businesses which don't make it are undercapitalized from the beginning. You probably can't count on anything for the first six months. You have to know how much it's going to cost to open your door every morning, how much it's going to cost for the first month, the second month, and so on. You should count on capitalizing the business for the first six months, even if you think it's just going to take you a few months to get started."

"If you go in undercapitalized," she says,

"Before you know it, your suppliers aren't going to trust you, the bank's going to call in anything you owe them, and you're beaten before you start."

Another key question is how much of the business' often-modest earnings to plough back into the business.

"I remember when we first started, we thought, 'Oh great! We can give ourselves the salary we want. Later we realized that you should leave in as much as possible. You should sit down with your pencil and decide how much you actually need at home and all the rest you should leave in," she says.

"Your own business is your best source of investment."

"Retained earnings" are the key words, says Kevin Michel of the Federal Business Development Bank, a Crown corporation set up by the federal government to assist small businesses.

"Too many people get started and take the money out," he says. "They leave the business short of working capital, short of being able to expand their inventory, short of being able to purchase the necessary assets."

And that, he says, is the shortest road to business failure.

Next: The right structure for your business.

WRECK YIELDS TREASURE CHEST

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Gulf shrimpers Curtis Blume and Steve Smith stumbled onto a dream — a sunken treasure ship loaded with gold and silver.

With salvage far from complete, about $350,000 worth of gold, 30 pounds of silver, five tons of copper and many artifacts have been plucked from the wreck of what is believed to be an 18th-century Spanish cargo ship.

But Blume and Smith aren't counting their money yet — they won't see it until lawyers, state bureaucrats and scientists finish work intended to protect the shrimpers and the state.

The wreck lies under six metres of muddy Gulf of Mexico water and a layer of silt about 1½ nautical miles off southwest Louisiana's Cameron Parish.

A round-the-clock guard is stationed at the site — an area of the seabottom 35 metres by 60 metres — and one diver often on duty is Smith, a 32-year-old shrimper whose sea adventures have always been business.

Objects recovered include cured turtle shells once used in Europe for hair combs, rouge sealed in casks for the cheeks of 18th-century ladies, ceramic figures made by Aztec Indians, leather hides, olive jars, several nine-foot cannon and a three-metre anchor. "Man, they haven't even touched it yet," said Steve Perry, assistant secretary of the state department of culture, recreation and tourism.

Scientists believe the wreck is Spanish and from the mid-1700s. Academic researchers are trying to figure out where the ship came from and where it was going.

With a bit of luck, Perry said, they may find a cargo manifest, which would detail the ship's contents and might list their origins and destinations.

The state owns the seabottom where Blume's shrimp nets snagged the wreck in the winter of 1979, and the department of culture, recreation and tourism will dictate how the salvage is done.

"That was only the second time in my life that I'd been over there," said 45-year-old Blume of his find. "It was just pure accident that I found it because there were lots of boats that hung up on it. There were a lot of nets on it."

Blume, who is married and has three children, said he never spent much time thinking about finding treasure, adding: "I was always too busy trying to make a living." He is still shrimping.

Polish coastal strike spreads as probe starts

GDANSK (AP) — A strike in a three-city industrial area on Poland's Baltic coast spread to the ports of Gdansk and Gdynia today, halting all Polish shipping from them, as the government sent a special commission to negotiate with strike leaders demanding sweeping changes.

"Many enterprises in the tricity are on strike, including the ports of Gdansk and Gdynia," the official Gdansk Radio said. "There is, therefore, no movement of ships. There will be no arrivals or departures of ships with the white and red flag."

The government sent a special commission headed by Deputy Premier Tadeusz Pyka to Gdansk to talk with a negotiating committee representing all the strikers in Gdansk, Gdynia and the neighboring city of Sopot, dissident sources said.

They said the committee had its headquarters in the giant V.I. Lenin Shipyard in Gdansk, occupied by as many as 16,000 workers since Thursday, and that it issued 16 demands in the name of all strikers in the tricity area.

Among the demands were an increase in average monthly wages to $236 from $170 to compensate for meat-price increases, meat rationing to stabilize the market, liquidation of special shops for the police and Communist party officials, guarantee of the right to go on strike, the right to establish free trade unions, freedom of expression, abolition of censorship, and release of all political prisoners.

THE LIGHTER SIDE

...Of dogs and owls

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Bob Ertel, accompanied by his singing dog, won the annual hogcalling contest at the Indiana State Fair. But his wife, Pat, had to settle for second place in the husband-calling competition.

Ertel of Batesville, Ind., was using the standard "Soooooooooooo" call in Sunday's contest when the family dog ran up from the audience and joined in with a chorus of howls.

The louder Ertel yelled, the louder the dog howled. The combination proved unbeatable. Ertel's wife finished second to Linda Knott of Gosport, Ind., in the husband-calling contest.

Mrs. Knott, who entered the state contest at her husband's urging, hollered out her husband's first and middle names, David Harry, then added a long "Soooooooooooo" and two short "Soooooooooooo" at the end.

"I was embarrassed, and shocked that I won," Mrs. Knott said. "But my husband said if I didn't win I'd just be the second-biggest mouth in our county, so I decided I'd better try to win."

MARLTON, N.J. (AP) — Robert Schell believes that Americans would give more of a hoot about the United States if the national symbol were an owl.

So he is proposing that Patriotic W. Owl — a two-metre bird costume done up in white, black, red and yellow — be adopted as garb for a national mascot.

"We're not trying to unseat the American eagle," said Schell, a postman. "E... we think that America in the 1980s needs a new philosophical approach to dealing with foreign countries. And the owl's just the thing."

"You take the owl. It sits up in a tree peacefully until a rodent, a varmint, passes by. Then it attacks. But what does it do then? It goes back into the tree. That's wisdom."

"That's what we mean, Americans must balance themselves between the hawk and the dove nowadays. In this modern society, we need wisdom more than ever." The W. in Patriotic's name, by the way, stands for wisdom.

Sovereignty association election issue denied

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebec Premier Rene Levesque hinted at a fall election Sunday and indicated he will not push sovereignty-association as an election issue.

"I think common sense dictates that there should not be a referendum election six months after the referendum," he said following a weekend meeting of the Parti Quebecois executive.

The statement appeared to set the next election for November, six months after the May 20 referendum in which Quebecers voted almost 60 per cent against giving the PQ government a mandate to negotiate sovereignty-association with the rest of Canada.

Levesque's remarks echoed those of Quebec Finance Minister Jacques Parizeau, who last week said the PQ should campaign on a pledge of good government and not on sovereignty-association if an election is held this fall.

Levesque qualified his remarks by saying he has not decided on an election date and will await the outcome of the federal-provincial talks on the constitution Sept. 8-12 before doing so.

But at its weekend meeting, the PQ executive approved holding nomination conventions in 15 ridings starting in September — "to be in good shape," Levesque said.

The government is not

RENE LEVESQUE...election?

CLAUDE RYAN...close ranks bound to call an election before the fall of 1981, five years after taking office, but elections are normally called after four years.

Sovereignty-association is the key element of PQ ideology but the party ran on a good-government platform in 1976, when it was swept to power for the first time.

The PQ executive passed a resolution this weekend reaffirming sovereignty-association as the party's main priority. The PQ national council, the party's decision-making body between conventions, will meet to discuss possible changes in its election platform Oct. 4.

Meanwhile, in the Eastern Townships riding of Johnson, Camille Picard was nominated as the Liberal candidate in anticipation of a provincial byelection there if no general fall election is called.

Johnson is one of four vacant ridings anticipating byelections although the government has not yet announced a date for them. Picard, 39, won the nomination with 454 votes, 59 more than his only opponent, Camille Rouillard, mayor of the town of Valcourt.

Johnson, formerly called Bagot, is traditionally a Union Nationale stronghold.

But Quebec Liberal leader Claude Ryan, who attended the nomination meeting, told reporters he expects UN voters in rural ridings to "close ranks behind us" to avoid splitting the vote in favor of the PQ.

In an election-pitched speech, Ryan also accused the government of serious overspending and predicted "lean years" for Q... as a result.

The first years of a Liberal administration would be marked by strict budgetary austerity to put the province back on sound financial footing, he said.

Dear Abby

Tell Master Salesman "No Deal"

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: First off, I am no ordinary girl. I have always been very mature for my age. When I was 13, I fell in love with a man much older than myself. I am now 16 and still feel the same about him. If possible, I am more in love with him than ever. Well, he's married and has four kids. He lives in South America, but comes here about every three months on business. I never know exactly when he will be in town, but as soon as he gets here he calls me, and I skip school and go to his hotel to be with him. Every time we're together we grow closer. The last time he was here I saw him two days in a row. Then I called his hotel and found out he was with another woman, so I told him it was all over between us. He pleaded with me not to make any decisions until he could explain. I am so in love with him I agreed to let him explain, but he left town without seeing me, and now I don't know what to think. I know he loves me, Abby, but I don't know how to handle things from now on. Please help me. My mother would never understand.

CRYING IN MY PILLOW

DEAR CRYING: If that man calls you again, gather every bit of strength your heart and soul can muster and tell him you never want to see him again. Then hang up. Don't wait for any explanations. He is a master salesman. You have been used. I beg you not to let yourself be used again.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a working woman, divorced, and the mother of a 4-year-old child. I'm self-supporting and barely make ends meet. I'm dating a little, but no one steady. One man I date is especially nice. When he brings me home he always insists on paying my sitter. I'd be lying if I said I didn't appreciate it a whole lot. My best friend (we work together) reacted strangely when I told her that this gentleman insisted on paying my sitter, and I let him. She said, "All men are alike. They want to obligate you. Sooner or later he'll get his money's worth." Abby, our relationship has been very proper. He's never tried to push himself on me or do anything I felt was out of line. What do you think? Does a woman obligate herself by letting a man pay for her sitter?

BOBBI ON A BUDGET

DEAR BOBBI: Some do and some don't. It depends on the man. You can't put them all in one bag. As long as you don't feel obligated to him, you're not.

DEAR ABBY: Do you think of dying very much? SAN MATEO SAM

DEAR SAM: No. It's the last thing I want to do.

DEAR ABBY: My 12-year-old daughter, Annie (made-up name), has a big problem she needs help with. Annie is a quiet, shy girl who has always stayed in the background. She has a girlfriend I'll call Rebecca. Rebecca is pushy and loud and has a big mouth. Whenever my Annie makes friends with another girl, this loud-mouthed Rebecca takes her new friend away from her. If Annie were more pushy like Rebecca, she would fight to keep her friends, but she just can't do it. She's too nice. How can I help Annie so she won't keep losing her friends to Rebecca?

ANNIE'S MOM

DEAR MOM: Annie will have to cultivate and maintain her own friendships. No one can steal a friend as if it were some kind of mindless doll. Mothers who try to run interference for their children in such matters tend to weaken, not strengthen them.

Games records fall amid Okanagan rain

KELOWNA, B.C. (CP) — Craig Jacobsen of Richmond led the record assault at the BC Summer Games, setting three provincial and Games marks in track and field.

Nine provincial and 34 meet records fell in track, field and swimming events during the three-day games which ended Sunday.

Jacobsen, 15, set B.C. records in the 100-metre hurdles, long jump and triple jump Saturday. He ran the hurdles in 13.4 seconds, under the previous provincial mark of 13.6 seconds and the Games standard of 13.8 seconds.

He leaped 6.39 metres in the long jump to shatter the B.C. record of 5.99 metres and the Games mark of 5.99. His triple jump of 12.98 metres surpassed the previous B.C. and Games record of 12.33 metres.

Running in drizzle Sunday, Mark Bushkewitz of Vancouver finished the boys 800-metres today in one minute, 58.9 seconds, one-tenth of a second under the previous

B.C. record, and better than the Games record of 2:01.3.

The day before, under sunny skies, Bushkewitz knocked more than six seconds off the 15-hundred-metre provincial and Games record, finishing in 4:02.1. Previous record was 4:08.7. Bushkewitz also was a member of the Vancouver-Squamish zone relay team that won the boys 4x400-metre relay in 3:34.7, exactly six seconds less than the previous B.C. and Games record.

Robert Bradley of Trail threw the shot 15.44 metres Sunday to erase the old Games record of 15.39 metres. Saturday, Bradley threw the discus 39.22 metres to win and raise the Games mark from 38.86 metres.

In the pool during the weekend, Allan McMillan of Burnaby set the Games records in the boys 14-15 50-metre butterfly and 100-metre backstroke Saturday, then was a member of the Fraser River-Delta zone team that set a Games record in winning the 200-metre medley relay. He won the butterfly in 30.8 seconds and the backstroke in 1:16.2. The relay team finished in 2:16.2.

Both the Vancouver-Squamish and the Thompson-Okanagan teams finished the girls 13-14 200-metre medley relay in 4:02.1. In the girls 100-metre backstroke Saturday, then was a member of the Fraser River-Delta zone team that set a Games record in winning the 200-metre medley relay. He won the butterfly in 30.8 seconds and the backstroke in 1:16.2. The relay team finished in 2:16.2.

Jan Smith of Vernon. After coming third at the first Summer Games, then second last year, Smith won the event this year.

Smith defeated 10-year-old defending champion Dan McGreer of Delta, who took the silver. Smith's son, 16-year-old Nigel, took the silver in the junior sailing competition.

In girls softball, Kelowna lost to its nemesis, Langford of Vancouver Island. Two weeks ago, Langford won the B-C juvenile championship, beating Kelowna 3-1. Today, Langford used the same score to take the gold, relegating Kelowna to second place.

The Langford team has only lost once in its last 55 games.

Hometown fans had their hopes in baseball raised, then dashed during final competition today when Kelowna and Victoria Drive of Vancouver played to a 6-6 draw.

Officials, pressed for time, first decided that instead of playing extra innings, Kelowna would move on to the final game against New Westminster. But after protests by the Vancouver team, officials decided that because they had more wins than Kelowna, the visitors would move into the finals.

Kelowna settled for the bronze, while Vancouver blasted New Westminster 10-4 for the gold.

EDMONTON (CP) — Arnold Palmer, a golfing folk-hero from Latrobe, Pa., courted disaster with a double-bogey on the 17th hole but hung on to win his first tournament in five years Sunday — a single-stroke triumph in the $100,000 Labatt's International Golf Classic.

"Golf is a fantastic game," Palmer said after his 271-stroke journey to the Canadian Professional Golfers' Association championship and $20,000 in top money.

Palmer, four strokes ahead with three holes to play on the Mayfair Golf and Country Club's 6,532 yards, faltered but managed to finish one stroke ahead of Isao Aoki of Japan. Aoki is the man who chased Jack Nicklaus to the United States Open title a couple of months ago.

"Rusty golf, that's what it was," Palmer, who turns 51 next month, said of his bogey, double-bogey par finish.

Gary Player of South Africa, who shared third place with Armando Saavedra of Argentina at 273, paid tribute to the man given credit for making golf a major television sport in the 1950s.

"Arnie really loves golf," Player said. "When someone loves something that much it's nice to see him being successful at it."

Palmer's 80th victory career victory was a boost to his "psychological well-being." He recalled that when he first went on the United States tour in the fall of 1954 the so-called experts predicted he would never last.

"I've never forgotten that," Palmer said in explaining why every victory since then has been a sweet thing.

ARNOLD PALMER has reason to smile

Although victories have been few recently, Palmer said he doesn't intend to quit playing competitively because "I'm enjoying myself so much."

Jim Nelford of Burnaby, B.C., was the top Canadian among the 70 players who made the cut for the final two rounds. Nelford closed with a 72 to finish in fifth place at 276 and won $4,500. Dave Barr of Kelowna, B.C., who had a share of the lead after Thursday's second round, finished at 277 — good for sixth place and $3,900.

Bob Charles of New Zealand and Antonio Evangelista shared seventh place with 278s, one stroke ahead of a trio consisting of Akiro Kanamoto of Japan, Serge Thivierge of Laval, Que., and John Morgan of Victoria, B.C., who all finished at even par 280.

Barr had criticized the format of the tournament, which until 1978 had been restricted to Canadian players, but now is open to invited foreign players who get guarantees and their expenses paid.

With the exception of Palmer, Player, Aoki and Charles, Barr said, the foreign contingent was a nondescript bunch that did little to meet the objective of attracting crowds to the tournament.

"But we pay their way while the top Canadians don't get any compensation," he said.

The majority of an estimated 35,000 people who watched the four-day event followed Palmer around the course.

While Los Angeles Dodgers and Cincinnati Reds were fighting it out for first place in the National League West in baseball action this weekend, Houston Astros heard opportunity knocking.

And they knocked back — hammering out four straight victories over San Diego Padres, including a 5-0, 9-2 doubleheader sweep Sunday, giving the Astros a first-place foothold in the NL West race.

The Reds, meanwhile, knocked off the Dodgers 6-2 to take two out of three games in their big series in Los Angeles and held second place, a halfgame behind the Astros. The Dodgers dropped two games off the pace, in third.

Elsewhere in the NL on Sunday, Pittsburgh Pirates beat Montreal 5-1 in the opener of a doubleheader before the Expos came back to take the nightcap 4-2; Philadelphia Phillies stopped New York Mets twice, 9-4 and 4-1; Chicago Cubs whipped St. Louis Cardinals 6-2, and Atlanta Braves beat San Francisco Giants 8-2.

In the NL on Saturday, Pittsburgh blanked Montreal 5-0, Philadelphia outlasted New York 11-5, San Francisco edged Atlanta 2-1, Cincinnati nipped Los Angeles 3-2, and Chicago upended St. Louis 9-4.

Pirates 5-2 Expos 1-4
Rick Rhoden scattered seven hits and Lee Lacy hit a two-run homer as Pittsburgh beat Montreal in the first game of their doubleheader.

The Expos came back to win the second game as Rodney Scott delivered a two-run single to snap a 2-2 tie in the ninth. The blow made a winner of Bill Gulickson, 5-3, who needed ninth-inning relief help from Woodie Fryman.

Reds 6 Dodgers 2
George Foster's walk with the bases loaded brought home the tie-breaking run in a three-run rally in the seventh inning that sent Cincinnati past Los Angeles. Dan Driess, a knocked home the second run of the frame with a sacrifice fly and Joe Nolan singled home another to give the Reds a 5-2 cushion.

Phillies 9-4 Mets 4-1
Steve Carlton gained his 19th victory with home run support from Bake McBride, Garry Maddox and Lonnie Smith as Philadelphia defeated New York in the first game of its doubleheader.

Maddox hit a two-run homer in the second game, giving him five RBI for the day, as the Phillies won the nightcap. Randy Lerch, 4-13, and reliever Ron Reed combined to hold New York to six hits.

Cubs 6 Cardinals 2
Rick Reuschel halted St. Louis on eight hits and drove in two runs with a single, leading Chicago over the Cardinals. Lenny Randle chipped in a two-run homer to a 14-hit Chicago attack off John Fulgham, 3-6, and three relievers.

Braves 8 Giants 2
Doyle Alexander pitched a five-hitter after hurling no-hit ball for six innings, and Dale Murphy blasted a grand slam homer and run-scoring double to lead Atlanta over San Francisco.

New York Yankees should count their blessings.

Despite a 1-0 loss to Baltimore on Sunday, they still lead the Orioles by 3½ games in the American League East and they still have the services of baseball's leading slugger Reggie Jackson.

Jackson, New York's key offensive threat, ran headlong into the right field fence after grabbing Doug DeCinces's liner to end the fourth inning and landed flat on his back after saving a run.

Jackson, who has 33 homers and 88 runs batted in, hit his head and scraped his left arm while bracing himself after the catch. He returned to action after treatment.

In other AL action Sunday, Kansas City Royals dumped Toronto Blue Jays 8-3, Seattle Mariners edged Oakland A's 4-3, Milwaukee Brewers swept Cleveland Indians 4-0 and 11-1, Texas Rangers handled Detroit Tigers 9-3 and 12-6, Minnesota Twins beat California Angels 8-1 and 6-5, and Boston Red Sox at Chicago White Sox was rained out.

In AL play Saturday, Kansas City upended Toronto 11-5, New York defeated Baltimore 4-1, Milwaukee doubled Cleveland 10-5, Texas pounded Detroit 12-3, Oakland beat Seattle 8-3, California at Minnesota and Boston at Chicago were rained out.

Royals 4 Blue Jays 3
George Brett continued to swing the hottest bat in baseball, raising his batting average over .400 with four hits as he led Kansas City to its decision over Toronto.

Rangers 9-12 Tigers 3-6
Al Oliver drove in three runs as the Rangers drubbed Mark Fidrych behind the six-hit pitching of Fergie Jenkins of Chatham, Ont., in the opener.

Brewers 4-1 Indians 0-1
Paul Mitchell hurled a fourhitter while Ben Oglivie and Sixto Lezcano homered in the opener. Larry Sorensen scattered nine hits over eight innings in the nightcap and Charlie Moore drove in three runs with three hits as Milwaukee ran its winning streak to six games and climbed within 7½ games of the Yankees in the AL East.

Mariners 4 A's 3
Home runs by Dan Meyer and Tom Paciorek helped Seattle end a six-game losing streak. Paciorek hit a two-run homer in the second inning. Meyer hit a tie-breaking solo shot in the sixth and consecutive two-out singles by Jerry Narron, Marjo Mendoza and Julio Cruz produced what proved to be the winning run in the eighth.

Twins 8-6 Angels 1-5

In the opener, the Twins broke out of a scoring slump with four runs in the first inning and prevailed behind the six-hit pitching of Roger Erickson. It was the first time they had scored as many as four runs in an inning since July 21. Butch Wynegar led a 12-hit attack with three hits while Hosken Powell, John Castino and Glenn Adams each had two. Minnesota scored three times in the first inning of the nightcap, chasing California's Chris Knapp before he could retire a batter. Mike Cabbage singled home the first two runs and Wynegar delivered a sacrifice fly. Rick Sofield singled a run home in the fifth and scored on Adams's triple while a single by Wynegar and Ron Jackson's triple produced a run in the sixth.

Tennis organizers hurt

TORONTO (CP) — Organizers of the $325,000 Player's International Canadian Open tennis championships are probably happy to hear the end of Bjorn Borg's knee, John McEnroe's ankle and Martina Navratilova's back.

But not Ivan Lendl and Chris Evert-Lloyd.

Lendl, the fourth seed from Czechoslovakia, and Evert-Lloyd, the second seed from the United States, won their respective singles championships Sunday in a tournament marred from the outset by injuries to key players.

Borg, the top-rated Swede, was the biggest and latest casualty — he had to retire in his title match with Lendl after winning the first set 6-4 and trailing 5-4 in the second. Borg first injured his right knee during practice Monday and warned tournament officials all week that he'd withdraw at the slightest hint of further problems.

There were a few boos from the crowd, but most indicated by their applause following his short speech that they were behind his decision to retire.

Whitecap rally ends in 3-1 victory over California club

Tampa Bay Rowdies scored on its first two shots on net and never looked back as they almost completely dashed Toronto's playoff hopes, dumping the Blizzard 4-1 in North American Soccer League action Sunday.

Canadian midfielder Wes McLeod opened the scoring on a somewhat shaky Blizzard goalie Bladgoje Tamindic at 18:46 after taking a pass from Jan Van Der Veen. Steve Wegerle then kicked his eighth of the season, converting a long midfield pass from McLeod and outracing Blizzard defender Mike McLenaghan. McLeod, a Vancouver native, added another goal as Tampa Bay, 18-12, collected its fourth consecutive win, moving the Rowdies back into first place of the American Conference Eastern Division. The loss dropped Toronto to 13-17 and left the Blizzard with only a slim chance of making the playoffs.

Toronto, with 119 points, now has to defeat the Rowdies at Tampa Bay on Wednesday and Atlanta Chiefs on Aug. 24 to have any chance at all to beat out Tulsa Roughnecks (131), who defeated Rochester Lancers 3-2 Sunday, for the final wild card spot in the National Conference.

In other NASL games

Sunday, Washington Diplomats beat New York Cosmos 2-1 in a shootout, Dallas Tornado edged Atlanta Chiefs 4-3 in overtime, and Vancouver Whitecaps defeated California Surf 3-1.

In action Saturday, Seattle Sounders tripped up Chicago Sting 3-1, Detroit Express clipped Philadelphia Fury 3-2, Minnesota Kicks slipped by Memphis Rogues 4-3, Fort Lauderdale Strikers defeated Los Angeles Aztecs 3-2 in overtime, and Portland Timbers topped San Jose Earthquakes 3-2.

Before 18,861 fans at Exhibition Stadium, the Blizzard looked powerless against the Rowdies. An indication of how quickly the Rowdies' goals were set up was goaltender Winston DuBoise's two assists. DuBoise also had a fine defensive game, stopping six shots

Van Der Veen rounded out the Rowdies' scoring while Drew Busby got the lone Blizzard goal.

Roughnecks 3 Lancers 2
Johnnes Edvaldson and Jorgen Kristensen paced a 19-shot Tulsa attack that was barely enough as the Roughnecks edged Rochester.

Diplomats 2 Cosmos 1
Bobby Stokes, Robert Larucci, Alan Green and Tommy O'Hara scored shootout goals Sunday to lift Washington to its victory over New York.

Tornado 4 Chiefs 3
Omar Gomez split the Chiefs' defence, took a perfect pass from Zeguinha and kicked the ball into the right hand corner of the net, giving Dallas a overtime victory over Atlanta. Wolfgang Rausch and Zeguinha rounded out Dallas's scoring.

Whitecaps 3 Surf 1
Vancouver broke a 1-1 tie on a goal by Bob Lenarduzzi and added an insurance goal by Peter Roe with less than five minutes remaining to down California. Mark Lindsay put the Surf in front at 14:19, but the Whitecaps came back at 43:49 on a goal by Kevin Hector.

NASL action resumes tonight with Philadelphia at Minnesota.

Everyday Fare With Flair
Economical, easy-to-make meat balls take on a veritable Continental air when you handle them a little differently and serve with a tasty sauce and fluffy, hot rice.
Rice is economical—costing only about three cents a serving. The cost is deceptive because a pound of rice when cooked, makes 14 half cups! That can give you a significant savings and this can give you a spectacular meal.

MEAT BALLS WITH SAUCE VERTE

- 1 pound lean ground beef
- 1/2 cup finely chopped onions
- 1/2 cup soft bread crumbs
- 3/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 2 tablespoons vegetable oil
- 1 package (3 oz.) cream cheese, softened
- 1/3 cup grated Parmesan cheese
- 2 tablespoons parsley flakes
- 1 teaspoon basil
- 1/4 teaspoon garlic powder
- 1 cup hot beef broth
- 1 teaspoon cornstarch
- 2 cups hot cooked rice

Combine meat, onions, bread crumbs, 1/2 teaspoon salt, and pepper; mix thoroughly. Form into 8 balls 1-1/2 inches in diameter. Brown on all sides in oil. Drain off fat. Combine remaining ingredients except cornstarch and rice; blend until smooth. Pour over meat balls, cover and simmer 15 minutes. Stir 2 tablespoons water into cornstarch. Pour into sauce; cook, stirring constantly, about 1 minute or until thickened. Serve over beds of fluffy rice. Makes 4 servings.

ALL ABOUT PEOPLE

Ubiquitous Canadian actor Donald Sutherland has signed to star in Passage, a Canadian film to go into production in September.

Sutherland will play a man torn by the moral and emotional questions of heart and other organ transplants.

Warbling actors may be rivalling traditional singers at this year's U.S. country music awards.

Sources say actor Clint Eastwood, actor-comedian George Burns and actress Sissy Spacek black and stuffed with prairie grass will be the symbol for a global religious conference at the University of Manitoba.

Winnipeg artist Jackson Beatty, a Cree Indian who designed the symbol, will address a meeting of international religious scholars on the relation between his art and his people. One of the conference topics will be native traditions of North America.

Marilyn Monroe bequeathed one-quarter of her $1.6-million estate to her psychiatrist, but the beneficiary says she didn't get a cent.

Marianne Kris said she never collected any money because she couldn't get proper information about Miss Monroe's estate — which now has shrunk to about $100,000.

The star-crossed actress was $372,136 in debt when she died of an overdose of sleeping pills 18 years ago at the age of 36. But revenue from her films later swelled her estate to $1.6 million.

Oceanographer Jacques Cousteau says his expedition has discovered a French whaling boat that sank in 1954 off the south coast of Labrador.

The underwater explorer said in Sept.-Oct. Que., that he has finished the first stage of a documentary — filming at the mouth of the St. Lawrence River. Cousteau is making a documentary on the impact of European settlers on marine life in the St. Lawrence and Great Lakes. The film is to be released in the fall of 1981.

President Joao Figueredo has come out with a song he hopes will rouse his country.

A record company has released Reveille, written by the former general during his military career.

The lyrics say, in part: "The bugle calls, upon announcing the sunrise, also urges you to do your duty.... The sound of awakening is a song that obliges you to dream the dream of tradition." Figueredo is donating any profits from the record to charity.

Rev. Lois Wilson says her election as moderator of the United Church of Canada represents a victory for church members wanting to become involved in world issues.

The associate minister, first woman spiritual leader of a Christian denomination in Canada, said the losers are those who think faith is merely a private experience.

Mrs. Wilson succeeds Rt. Rev. George Tuttle.

CLINT EASTWOOD...

...another winner could become finalists at the Country Music Association awards in Nashville, along with such perennial nominees as Kenny Rogers and Willie Nelson.

Miss Spacek is under consideration as top female vocalist for her movie role portraying singer Loretta Lynn, sources say. A duet by Eastwood and singer Merle Haggard in the actor's latest film, and a solo recording by Burns, are also said to be in the running.

Three television stars nominated for the Emmy — Ed Asner, Alan Alda and Mike Farrell — say they will boycott the awards ceremony Sept. 7 if the Screen Actors Guild strike is still on then.

Hank Reiger, president of the Academy of Television Arts and Sciences, said the boycott could force cancellation of the awards and "put the future of the academy and the Emmys in jeopardy."

Buckle up or pay up. That's the message to Quebec motorists from provincial Transport Minister Denis de Belleval.

De Belleval told a road safety meeting in Pointe-Au-Pic, Que., that fines for failing to wear seatbelts should be increased to $100 from $10. His planned crackdown would include stepped-up police surveillance.

Proposed changes increasing fines and amending the Highway Code will be debated by the Quebec national assembly at its fall session.

BRITAIN CLOSES EMBASSY Iran demands solution to captives

Iranian Foreign Minister Sadeq Ghotbzadeh called in the top British diplomat in Tehran today and demanded an immediate solution to the problem of Iranian demonstrators imprisoned in London.

He said the issue would affect relations between the two countries, the Iranian foreign ministry said.

The ministry disclosed no details of the meeting which came one day after Britain, apparently fearful of a takeover like the seizure of the U.S. Embassy in Tehran, temporarily closed its embassy in the Iranian capital following demonstrations by thousands protesting the arrest of the Iranians in London.

The British foreign office said eight of its diplomats were being recalled. But a senior diplomat, Charge d'Affaires Arthur Wyatt, and three others will remain in Tehran to provide consular protection for the estimated 250 Britons still living in Iran.

A spokesman described the move as a "precautionary measure at a time of tension" and said the closure was temporary. He also said no more visas are being issued for Iranians to visit Britain.

Relations between Britain and Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's revolutionary regime worsened after British police arrested 68 Iranians at violent anti-American demonstration outside the U.S. Embassy in London on Aug. 4. The Iranians, 40 of whom remain in jail facing trial on weapons and assault charges, were protesting the arrest in Washington of the 191 Iranian demonstrators on July 27. Those arrested in Washington were subsequently released.

The arrests in London spurred mass demonstrations outside the British Embassy in Tehran and a sit-in inside the building.

Four British citizens are believed under arrest in Iran. Two days after the arrests in London, Anglican missionary Jean Waddell was seized in the city of Esfahan and accused of spying. Two Britons who ran a medical clinic in Yazd, Dr. John Coleman and his wife, are missing and believed held, and Times correspondent Tony Allaway was seized Thursday in Tehran for questioning about alleged espionage.

The U.S. Embassy in Tehran was seized on Nov. 4 by Moslem militants angered by the U.S. government's decision to admit the deposed shah of Iran into the United States for cancer treatment. The Iranians continue to hold 52

American. Meanwhile, Reuters news agency reported Sunday from Santiago that Iran has broken diplomatic relations with Chile.

A Chilean foreign ministry communique said the Iranian foreign ministry told the Chilean charge d'affaires in Tehran on Saturday that Iran is severing diplomatic and consular relations because of "basic differences of principle between the government systems of the two countries."

Reagan defending U.S. Vietnam role

CHICAGO (AP) — Defending the U.S. role in the Vietnam war as "a noble cause," Republican presidential nominee Ronald Reagan called today for a rebuilding of U.S. military forces and denounced President Carter for "betrayal" of veterans.

In remarks prepared for delivery to the Veterans of Foreign Wars annual convention, where he was to accept the group's endorsement for president, Reagan attacked Carter's foreign policy as "one of weakness, inconsistency, vacillation and bluff."

It was one of Reagan's strongest pro-military speeches, and it marked the first time in the 1980 campaign that Reagan gave his unqualified endorsement to the U.S. involvement in the Vietnam war.

"For too long, we have lived with the Vietnam syndrome," Reagan said. "As the years dragged on, we were told that peace would come if we would simply stop interfering and go home."

"It is time we recognized that ours was, in truth, a noble cause. A small country, newly free from colonial rule, sought our help in establishing self-rule and the means of self-defence against a totalitarian neighbor bent on conquest."

"There is a lesson for all of us in Vietnam. If we are forced to fight, we must have the means and determination to prevail," Reagan said, adding: "We dishonor the memory of 50,000 young Americans who died in that cause if we give way to feelings of guilt as if we were doing something shameful."
